

GARY SYSTEM GIVEN APPROVAL IN WOMAN'S CLUB DISCUSSION

Principals, Mothers, Superintendent of Schools, and President of School Board Tell of Its Good Work; W. W. Bridgers Alone Criticizes Work; "Give the System a Fair Trial," the Keynote.

As the introduction of the Gary system into a number of the public schools of El Paso has resulted in much difference of opinion, discussion and criticism among the citizens of El Paso, the Woman's club made its meeting Wednesday afternoon in the First Christian church, an open meeting for its discussion. The reasons why the Gary system was adopted, the actual changes it represents in the school work and the benefits that have resulted from it were presented by the superintendent of public schools R. J.

Tighe, the president of the school board. E. M. Whitaker, playground supervisor, J. H. Stine, music supervisor Miss Elizabeth Doak and Miss Catherine Gorbett, the principal of the Aoy school, where the modified Gary system was first introduced last year.

The meeting was very largely attended and the greatest interest was manifested in the various talks, the large audience remaining almost entirely to the very last and participating in the discussion which followed the addresses. Mrs. R. B. Roman was the chairman of the program.

Need for Exercise. J. H. Stine was the first speaker. In discussing the reasons for making supervised playground work a necessity, Mr. Stine compared the conditions of modern life, where the majority of the population is congested in the cities, in apartment houses, with no opportunity or place for the children to have their normal play activities with the conditions of a quarter of a century ago, where the rural population was the greater and the child had out door chores to do and a large amount of out door activity in connection with its daily life.

Mr. Stine discussed the great importance of play as the natural method of the child's development in engaging in life's activities, rather than merely observing them.

Health is Essential. "In handling a child you can not deal just with the mind nor just with the body, nor just with the soul. You have to take the whole child, for whatever affects one part, affects the whole child. The bodily health is vitally essential to the development of the mind and soul. You can not develop the mind of the child at the expense of his body without hurting the whole child."

It is a teacher's business to educate children, not just minds, nor souls; whatever you lead the child to do, uses the whole child and therefore the importance of the playground work can not be overestimated.

Developing Fair Play. "It has been found that the right kind of play is the means for developing in boys manliness, the sense of fair play and justice better than anything that could be studied from books."

Mr. Stine quoted a number of great and prominent educators from ancient and modern times who advocated the use of play, rather than books, to impress the fundamental principles of life upon their pupils.

Music in School. Following Mr. Stine Miss Elizabeth Doak, the music supervisor, discussed the importance of music in the schools. "When properly taught," said Miss Doak, "no other subject in the school curriculum possesses such education as music, which is the exception of literature." Miss Doak spoke of the importance of music in the teaching of the child, the importance of the use of the phonograph, which enabled the schools to present to the children the highest class of music, something impossible to give them in the school, and the importance of the music department upon the school students themselves or the supervisor. She spoke of the importance of the music department upon the school students themselves or the supervisor. Approves Gary System. Miss Catherine Gorbett, principal of the Aoy school, where the modified Gary system was so successfully introduced last year, reported the success of the system. She said that when the system was first introduced, she was dubious of the results and that her force of teachers strongly disliked it. As the school term continued, they began to see the results produced through the Gary system and by the middle of the year there was not a teacher in the school who would return to the old method.

The system has worked wonders in our school," said Miss Gorbett. "We have found it better for the children mentally, morally and physically. It is better mentally because with specialist teachers the children are able to accom-

"Never in my experience as a teacher has real effective discipline worked so hand in hand with morality as I have found with the Gary system. This was the only place in the whole city where any sort of physical training was given, and these two institutions together did not touch one-tenth of the boys and girls of El Paso."

Child Gets Attention.

All need physical training, and through the playground periods, instead of the general recess, the child can be given by the schools a degree of personal attention and supervision that was absolutely impossible before. The dissatisfaction with the Gary system I have found among the teachers comes from the 12 month system pay, instead of the former nine month system and the six hour a day work, with the real system itself. It is, perhaps, hard on a teacher who, under the former method, had only four hours' work to do, who is now required to teach six hours, but the healthy-minded teacher desires a full day's work and a full day's pay."
